A Savior for All

@ Granbury Church Free Wifi

Lou was one of the most effective leaders I have ever known. As the president of a state university a number of years ago, he had a vision for where that college could and should be in the distant future, then put into place the necessary steps to reach that goal. Today the university is reaping the benefits of his visionary leadership.

Lou was not a pretentious man, but in his role as president, he had the responsibility and skill to hobnob with the most elite, powerful and influential people in society. Something that set him apart from other leaders, however, is that one would be just as likely to find him stopping to chat with a freshman student on campus, visiting with one of the janitors in the hallway, or taking a young campus minister out to lunch. These were not perfunctory visits; he truly valued and cared about people, from the top echelons of society to the lowliest of the low.

As a Christian, Lou was simply following in the footsteps of his Master. In reading John 3, we see Jesus in a challenging conversation with Nicodemus, one of the most prominent members of Jewish society. In the very next chapter, we find Him at the opposite end of the spectrum, talking at length with a despised, immoral Samaritan woman. Ironically, both of these people needed the same thing – a Savior. And because of His great love for people from all walks of life, Jesus was able to make life-changing connections to meet the needs of both.

As followers of Christ today, may we take advantage of every opportunity to share our faith with those around us, regardless of their place in life. We never know who might respond with, "Yes, Lord, I believe."
