Being the Church to the World

"Don't just go to church; be the church" is a popular phrase in Christian circles. In Luke 5:27-32, Jesus shows us what that looks like when He reaches out to people of the world by sharing a meal and building relational bridges to them.

The following excerpt from a blog by Karl Vaters gives practical ways that we can be the church to those outside of Christ.

- Pray for them. All the strategies and friendliness in the world won't make any difference without this.
- Build relationships with no strings attached. No one wants to be someone else's project. They always know when they are; they can smell it.
- Live with integrity. We need to live upright lives. Holy lives. Honest and transparent lives. Trust is easy to lose and hard to earn. And it's even harder to earn back.
- Live a life of generosity. It's time for the church to be known as the people who are always giving things away. Show them that faith in Jesus is more about giving than receiving.
- Be available. People don't reach out to a church when they're hurting; they reach out to a friend. When people are hurting, be available and let Jesus do the rest.
- Have more conversations. Show people that you care. And the best way to start is to listen to them. Jesus had small conversations on big subjects. That's where He earned people's trust, and that's where we'll earn it, too.

People become willing to consider Jesus when they like and trust the Christians they know. We have to be the church before they'll go to church.

What will you do to be the church today?
